ROMEO AND JULIET: PLAY TO FEATURE INTERNATIONAL STUDENT!

Who doesn't love the eternal love story of Romeo and Juliet? We have read it, re-read it, and watched it transformed into movies, plays, and even music videos. Still, one can never have enough of it. Well, once again, you have a production of Romeo and Juliet coming your way. This time, it's not too far from home!

The Rutgers–Camden theater department is featuring a production of Romeo and Juliet, directed by Dr. Kenneth Elliot, who is also the chair of the Fine Arts Department. The entire cast and crew is made up of Rutgers students, and the sets, the costumes, and the props have all been produced by these individuals. The title roles are being portrayed by Khalil Ladouceur and Kimmie Starts, with an outstanding ensemble put together by students (most of whom are not even theater majors). We are especially proud of Parth Patel, an international student from India, for being cast as Gregory within just a few weeks of setting foot on campus.

We invite you to enjoy this play with your friends and family. It is running from April 13th to April 17th in the Gordon Theater. Tickets are available at the IMPACT booth and are FREE for Rutgers students! Grab your tickets now!
